A graduate of University College Dublin, Carmel spent 2 years in the UK before moving to Hong Kong in 1992. After some time in general practice, she completed further study in dermatology, and spent time training with specialists overseas, before establishing a busy dermatology clinic at the SPCA. She now runs a private referral service, dealing exclusively with skin and ear problems. Carmel has a Certificate in Medical and Health Science Education from Hong Kong University.

Carmel is a founder member, and currently Vice President of the Asian Society of Veterinary Dermatology. She was Honorary Secretary of the Sixth World Congress of Veterinary Dermatology which took place in Hong Kong in 2008. She is the Asian representative on the executive committee of the World Association of Veterinary Dermatology. She is also a member of the European Society of Veterinary Dermatology and the British Veterinary Dermatology Study Group.

Carmel has lectured in many different countries in the Asian region, as well as in North America. Her professional interests include Staphylococcal infections in domestic animals, parasitic infections, and teaching and learning in Veterinary Medicine.
